ALL IN NONPARTISAN STUDENT VOTING GROUP REPORT
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Since the 2016 election, college student voter turnout rates compared to the previous similar election have continued to increase. Student leaders have been key drivers of increasing nonpartisan student democratic participation and college student voter turnout. In 2021, the ALL IN Campus Democracy Challenge (ALL IN), a nonpartisan program of Civic Nation, started a process to learn more about student-led nonpartisan voter engagement efforts and surveyed students to learn how many of nonpartisan student voting groups existed, to what extent they are supported by their institutions, and what strategies, tactics, and ideas they use to engage their student body in this report. ALL IN is proud to release the updated second edition of the 2022 ALL IN Nonpartisan Student Voting Group Report.

The goal of this updated report is to increase awareness about nonpartisan student voting groups and to share key action items that campus employees and students can take to start, grow, and sustain nonpartisan student voting groups. While students representing 120 institutions have responded to our survey over the past two years, not every institution has a nonpartisan student voting group. At some institutions, a student participates in the broader campus voting coalition while at other institutions a student leads nonpartisan voter engagement work as a fellow for a nonpartisan nonprofit organization. The action items in this report are applicable to nonpartisan student voting groups, student efforts through a campus voting coalition, or students working with limited institutional support.

In 2022, ALL IN received 94 survey responses about nonpartisan student voting group activities for elections in 2021, a more than 50% increase in responses compared to our first survey following the 2020 election. Additionally, ALL IN completed 7 interviews with nonpartisan student voting group leaders and members. While these data represent a small sample size of self-reported data, they provide an important understanding on ways that institutions and nonprofit partners can support nonpartisan student voting groups.

In addition to self-reported data about nonpartisan student voting groups, this report includes action items that campus stakeholders, nonprofit organizations, and students can take to start, grow, and sustain their nonpartisan student voting group.

We are grateful for the students who completed the survey and were interviewed, the campus contacts who sent the survey to student leaders, and the nonprofit partners who helped distribute the survey and contributed ideas to this report. A full list of acknowledgements can be found at the end of the report. Questions about the report and requests to participate in future surveys and interviews can be directed to allinchallenge@civicnation.org.
The data from the 94 survey responses show both positive developments and a concerning decreased level of engagement from key campus leaders and stakeholders in odd-years. This comes after record setting college student voter participation in 2020 when 66% of college students voted according to data from the National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement (NSLVE) at the Institute for Democracy & Higher Education at Tufts University.

POTENTIAL TRENDS TO KEEP AN EYE ON

Underrepresentation of MSIs and community colleges

While more Minority Serving Institutions and community colleges are represented in the 2022 report, they still remain underrepresented. ALL IN will pursue additional outreach efforts in 2023 to reach more students at these institutions.

Decreased campus stakeholder engagement

Across many key campus stakeholders, nonpartisan student voting group respondents reported less engagement in 2021 compared to 2020: including but not limited to the institution’s administration, student government, deans, faculty, student affairs staff, campus staff, undergraduate and graduate students, Greek life, and diverse student groups and centers.

Less election messaging and coordination with nonpartisan student voting groups from campus leadership

While 88% of respondents indicated that campus leaders sent an email or text message about the election in 2020, only 54% of respondents reported that campus leadership sent election messaging in 2021. There was a nearly fourfold increase in responses that campus leaders didn’t send any messages about elections in 2021. Nonpartisan student voting groups reported a nearly 50% decrease in campus leaders working with their groups on messaging compared to 2020.

Decrease in stakeholder communication

The percentage of respondents who reported average or strong communication with key campus stakeholders like the administration and faculty decreased from 87% to 83%.

Decreased financial support

Nonpartisan student voting groups reported that their 2021 budgets were 50% lower compared to 2020. Nearly 40% of nonpartisan student voting group respondents reported not knowing their budget, up from 24% in 2020.
FINANCIAL AND HUMAN RESOURCES

After consulting with nonprofit partners and student leaders, additional data about funding and student involvement were collected in the 2022 survey about the 2021 election cycle that was not collected about the 2020 election.

In addition to nonpartisan student voting groups needing increased financial support, student leaders need more access to and understanding of nonpartisan student voting group budgets. Student leaders can be more proactive to access financial information and campus staff supporting these efforts can include student leaders in financial processes.

Based on self-reported budgets, on average 4-year institutions had more financial support and had a greater percentage of their financial support come from the institution.
