

Lasell University
All In Campus Democracy Challenge
Action Plan Draft – December 2019

Executive Summary

The Lasell University All in Democracy Challenge Action Plan was developed by members of the newly formed Lasell Votes Initiative.

Lasell Votes is a nonpartisan initiative created to support the development of democratic participation as a core value of Lasell University through strengthening civic learning, political engagement, and voter participation. Though Lasell University has a rich history of civic engagement and community service, there has not been a formal structure in place to support student voter engagement. NSLVE data showed Lasell’s overall voting rate for the 2012 and 2016 presidential elections to be 39.4% and 47.8%, respectively. The overall voting rate for the 2014 and 2018 midterm elections were 12.4% and 28.3%, respectively.

This plan sets the direction and plan to guide Lasell’s future support of student’s electoral engagement. Using available campus resources, the Lasell Votes members will work in collaboration and partnership with campus and community partners to promote and support student’s electoral engagement. This plan sets the direction and plan to guide initiative efforts and actions.

Commitment

We are committed to encouraging and supporting an interest in and action towards political engagement.

Lasell University Mission Statement: We immerse students in experiential and collaborative learning that fosters lifelong intellectual exploration and social responsibility.

Lasell Votes Mission Statement: Lasell Votes is a nonpartisan initiative that aims to support the development of democratic participation as a core value of Lasell University through strengthening civic learning, political engagement, and voter participation.

Civic and Community Engagement (CCE) is a primary component of the University's Core Curriculum. In order to hold true to the interdisciplinary spirit of the Core Curriculum, this CCE outcome is interwoven throughout many courses and experiences for our students. Indeed, no specific, stand-alone course is dedicated to developing this outcome. Instead, through common activities, readings, and assignments in various different disciplines and at various different stages in their education, students have multiple opportunities to participate in civic engagement. The learning outcomes for this component are as follows:

Foundational Knowledge

- Articulate an informed understanding of the 'common good'
- Distinguish among civic engagement, justice, and service
- Identify resources that can be tapped to address societal challenges

Skills

- Increase civic agency by developing a "public self"
- Develop and demonstrate bridge-building across differences (empathy?)
- Acknowledge and advocate for populations outside one's own
- Engage in collaborative decision-making and deliberative processes

Direct Action

- Participate in public problem-solving through and with diverse partners
- Directly contribute to community, government, non-profit organization(s)

Landscape

Lasell University

Founded in 1851, Lasell University is a private university located in Newton, Massachusetts that offers undergraduate and graduate degrees through a curriculum of connected learning across our five academic schools. Approximately 80% of our undergraduate population lives on our all-ages campus, that includes a daycare (the Barn), Rockwell Preschool, and Lasell Village, a senior living community focused on lifelong learning. In 2019, we welcome a total student body of 2,092, with 1,650 undergraduates and 442 graduate students. The majority of our students hail from the New England region, but we also have robust international student populations, as well as representation from all across the United States.

Historic Perspective

Lasell University has an enduring commitment to civic engagement that can be seen across our illustrative history. From our earliest days, as the Lasell Seminary for Young Women, students held mock elections, despite that, as 18 year old women, the students were excluded from voting in the actual elections. In the early 20th century, students led a vibrant Suffragette society that worked to change that, and then in the 1970's they led an active campaign in support of the 26th amendment to lower the voting age to 18. Since that time, Lasell students have been actively engage in local and national politics, committed to their society and country.

Programming at the School

In 2016, in preparation for the Presidential Election, the University sponsored a Spring Speakers series to promote education and understanding of the issues facing the nations and represented on the ballot. The series, created by President Michael Alexander, was themed “Educate your Vote,” and featured distinguished guests, such as Congressmen Joe Kennedy and Jim McGovern speaking on topics such as the refugee crisis, public education, environmental policy, and economic policy.

Ahead of the 2016 election, students and residents of Lasell Village teamed up to educate voters and raise turnout rates in a collaborative “Get out the Vote Drive.” Students and residents tabled outside the library, dining hall, and commons spaces at Lasell Village to help voters register to vote on campus. Additionally, the group created a poster campaign, e-mail messaging, and stickers to promote voter turnout.

Core in the Curriculum

As noted in the commitment section above, Lasell University’ core curriculum, required of all students contains multiple requirements linked to civic engagement including:

- Articulate an informed understanding of the ‘common good’
- Distinguish among civic engagement, justice, and service
- Identify resources that can be tapped to address societal challenges

Community-Based Learning

Lasell University has a long-standing commitment to active citizenship in our community in Newton, Greater Boston, and the United States. On campus, this work is support by the Center for Community Based Learning. Lasell’s Center for Community Based Learning provides support and opportunities for students, faculty and staff to engage with community organizations on mutually beneficial projects. Beyond the long-term projects, such as those with the Newton Public Schools, Lasell students also participated in several one-time community service events for a total of 1,653 hours involving 643 student attendees, over the last academic year.

The Donahue Institute for Ethics, Diversity, & Inclusion

On campus, The Donahue Institute for Ethics, Diversity and Inclusion promotes social justice and global consciousness. The Institute fosters community and discourse on diversity through a wide range of events including lectures, discussion forums, films, theatre, and more. By promoting diversity and ethics on campus, the Donahue Institute fosters cross-cultural awareness and educates students to the issues faced by minority communities throughout the country and world.

Student Voter Data

Traditionally, Lasell University has seen voting rates just below the national average, with a much higher rate during Presidential Election years. According to the National Study of Learning, Voting, and Engagement (NSLVE), Lasell University had a 47.8% voter turnout, which was up 8.5% from the previous presidential election in 2012. This turnout percentage placed us just below the national average of 50.4% for all institutions, but was also boosted by the high turnout of Lasell Village residents, who are classified as part time students.

In 2018, NSLVE found that Lasell University students had a much lower turnout for the midterm elections, with only 28.3% participating. While this was up 16% from the previous midterm election (2014), it is well below the national average for all institutions, which was 39.8% in 2018. Once again, these numbers were boosted by Lasell Village residents, while students aged over 50 had a 66.7% turnout, students age 18-21 only saw a turnout rate of 20.5%. These statistics have earned Lasell University a Bronze Seal from NSLVE, but we are looking to improve further on that achievement.
